ENVIRO Approaching 30 years

The Lynn's family business that started in landscaping 1985 has grown to be one of the nation's largest black-owned construction and landscaping firms

The ENVIRO philosophy is as much about building relationships as it is about buildings.

Good Corporate Citizen. Committed to Quality. Dedicated and Consistent. Visionary. Loyal. Stable.

These are just a few of the hallmarks of ENVIRO's success. In 1984, after a successful career at one of the nation's largest agricultural companies, Dr. Lynn has parlayed a "golden handshake" from Monsanto into ENVIRO AgScience, a multi-million dollar, minority-owned landscape and construction firm with offices in South Carolina and Georgia.

With a legacy of business excellence and ownership, including his grandfather, who owned a grocery store and his father, who ran a butcher shop, Dr. Lynn chose the path of entrepreneurship. Using his education from Clemson and the University of Maryland, Dr. Lynn created a commercial lawn care business that has grown into a full-service construction management company servicing government, military, schools and universities along with the private sector.

Throughout the years, ENVIRO has been recognized as a leader in landscaping and construction. Most recently, ENVIRO has enjoyed several key awards:

- 2013 > Black Enterprise, Largest 100 Black Businesses (Ranked 84th)

- 2012 > Small Business of the Year - Ronald H. Brown Leadership Award, US Dept. of Commerce
- > SC 25 Fastest Growing Companies (Ranked 4th)
- > National Association of Small & Disadvantage Businesses Member of the Year

- 2011 > Regional Minority Construction Firm of the Year, Atlanta Minority Business Development Agency.
- > MBE Class I Supplier of the Year, Carolinas Minority Supplier Development Council

- 2003 > Small Business Administration 8(a) Program

Poised for the future, ENVIRO will continue to be responsive, deliver a quality product and always do the right thing. The next generation of ENVIRO leaders, Adrienne, Krystal and Bryan are committed to run a company that will strive to fulfill customers' wishes and needs. ENVIRO's future endeavors include: public sector projects, both federal and municipal, transportation industry focusing on aviation-airports, large acreage ground maintenance/landscaping and international markets.

Sisters Prep to Take Over $28 Million Black Construction Business

Black Enterprise Magazine Top 100 | Ranked #84 in 2013

Taken from the Black Enterprise article by Carolyn M. Brown, posted 12/23/13

Louis B. Lynn's family tree is rooted in entrepreneurship. His grandfather owned a grocery store and his father ran a butcher shop.

"My father was businessman of the year back in the '60s. Last year, we won the Ronald H. Brown Leadership Award," says the president and chief horticulturalist of ENVIRO AgScience Inc. (No. 84 on the BE industrial/service companies list with $28 million in revenues).

Now it is the next generation, Lynn's children, who are spearheading plans to make ENVIRO a multinational company. His daughters Adrienne Lynn, 39, an engineer, and Krystal Conner, 36, a pharmacist, serve as vice presidents. His son, Bryan, 28, is a landscape manager.

Furthermore, a succession plan is in place for Lynn to pass the reins on to his daughters and thereby transition ENVIRO into a certified minority- and woman-owned enterprise. Lynn will stay on as chairman, while Krystal will serve as CEO and Adrienne as president.

"My father didn't pass on a business but the desire to start a business," the 64-year-old Lynn says. "We are the first generation in my family to have a real opportunity to pass on a substantial business."

*Taken from the WACHFox article by Bree Boyce

Three Midlands foster youth were lucky when The Riley Diversity Leadership Institute in partnership with On The Road Again, a project of the South Carolina Foster Parent Association presented three donated automobiles to Carl and Mary Brown and Brian Marion of the South Carolina Foster Parent Association. Dr. Louis Lynn and Mike Johnson, CEO of Cox Industries were both happy to do their civic duty and donate cars to foster youth in South Carolina.

Education is Power

Taken from the Columbia Regional Business Report

Dr. Lynn testifies to the power of education in growing a business. His educational background in Horticulture launched ENVIRO into the landscaping business as well as tackling the process of operating a successful business. ENVIRO uses the business to serve the greater good, through employment or internships and "giving folks a chance" as well as helping out the community with local nonprofits. Dr. Lynn's philosophy for ENVIRO is to be a socially responsible firm and from a public perspective to "pay his civic rent."
