ENVIRO LAUNCHES A NEW LOOK

ENVIRO rolls out a new corporate identity package, including an updated logo and website. The identity package is the first significant change in ENVIRO's look and will usher in the 30th anniversary of the company.

The identity system significantly expands the range of colors and designs available for use in AP products and services. The new logo draws on the legacy of a well-established brand, employing an icon that shows vertically and modernity, as well as giving representation of the "E" in ENVIRO. The color pattern has been updated with modern hues of green, brown and grey. The package employs a master-brand approach, with all business divisions and services presented under a single logo.

In addition to the updated logo, the ENVIRO website, which can be found at www.enviroags.com has been revamped and re-designed to offer the end-user a platform to learn about the services ENVIRO offers, its leadership, team, current and past projects. The site is responsive to provide an optimal viewing experience—easy reading and navigation across a wide range of devices from desktop computer monitors to mobile phones and tablets. The site also incorporates social media and news feeds to provide the user company and industry news.

This new look, from logo to color system and website, translates to ENVIRO's growth strategies to build upon both our successful construction and landscaping divisions, while allowing for different aspects of the company to be presented visually

Hardball Capital, the group bringing a professional team to Columbia's new baseball stadium at the Bull Street development, Spirit Communications Park, for the 2016 season, has received the required approval from professional baseball organizations.

Team owner Jason Freier said a letter of approval received by the city of Columbia was a requirement of his group's contract with the city.

Barton Malow, which has extensive experience building ballparks nationally, will head a joint venture that includes three Columbia-area companies: Contract Construction, Construction Dynamics and ENVIRO AgScience.

On January 6, city officials, Hardball Capital, and business leaders broke ground at the Columbia Common site to begin work on Spirit Communications Park.

The state-of-the-art multi-use sports and entertainment venue will be home to an affiliated professional Minor League Baseball team beginning in April, 2016.
